

It's true, the mobile market has no competition when you can't bring your own phone from one carrier to the other, and you are forced to buy a new phone, who would do such a thing? We need to have interoperability, where we can switch carriers without having to buy new phones. This could be achieved with wholesale open access rules (mandating Carterfone for wireless) for wireless market.