

Best case scenario to keep up some competition (if T-Mobile is going away) is for Sprint and T-Mobile to merge and restructure to form a single competitive third player.

Otherwise, we're likely looking at two players on the market -- Verizon and AT&T -- both of whom have shown a proclivity for jacking up prices to the highest level possible.