

REDACTED FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION - IN WC DOCKET NO. 05-25, RM-10593
before the Federal Communications Commission

5 g. AT&T has no constraints on the number of circuits that can be disconnected in order to Change Service Providers. Customers can disconnect service at any time and can also order service from another service provider at any time. See responses to A1 and A2 for a discussion of the disconnect and ordering processes.

REDACTED FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION - IN WC DOCKET NO. 05-25, RM-10593
before the Federal Communications Commission

B6. Terms and Conditions. For each Contract-Based Tariff in the LSAs listed in Attachment A of this Public Notice, provide by LSA:

a. A statement describing whether the LSA is subject to Phase I Pricing Flexibility and/or Phase II Pricing Flexibility, and for what elements; and

Response

See Attachment 6a

b. If applicable, a description of any of the Contract-Based Tariff's non-rate benefits, such as the ability to move services without penalty, that are based on term, volume, revenue or other commitment requirements; and

Response

See Attachment 6b

c. If applicable, a description of the contingency (or contingencies) on which the Contract-Based Tariff's discount is based (that is, requirement of a commitment of term, volume, revenue, a combination, or other) and the business rationale for the discount (include discussion of maximum as well as minimum purchase requirements); and

Response

See Attachment 6c

Depending what the customer's requirements are (e.g. portability, lower pricing, service upgrades, etc.), AT&T may ask for volume, revenue and/or term commitments as part of the overall negotiation in order to meet the customer's needs and still retain value for AT&T (e.g. If the customer is willing to commit to a longer term, some type of volume or revenue commitment, etc., AT&T may offer the customer other terms and conditions including, but not limited to, lower pricing, commitment credits, early termination of circuits without liability, etc. to meet their needs). These contingencies provide AT&T a measure of certainty regarding the volumes of services sold, and thus of the revenue on which AT&T relies to recover its investment in and costs of operating its network

d. A description of the Contract-Based Tariff's provisions for Changing Service Providers, such as whether any constraints on the number of circuits that can be changed on a daily, weekly, or monthly basis exist, and whether the customer must continue to pay for circuits that are waiting to be changed (and if so what the rate for those circuits would be).

Response

There are no contract provisions placing constraints on the number of circuits that can be disconnected to change to a different service provider.

9. Terms and Conditions. What are the steps involved in Changing Service Providers, if a customer elects to do so? Other than provisions in Contract-Based Tariffs addressing a customer's ability to Change Service Providers, are there any legal and/or operational constraints on how many circuits can be changed per day, per week, per month? Within what geographic region are those constraints applicable? Are all changes subject to the same constraints? Where are your Changing Service Providers policies recorded, and how are they communicated to customers?

Response

As discussed in our responses questions A1 and A2, AT&T places no constraints on a customer's ability to disconnect service in order to switch to a different service provider. Customers can disconnect service and order service from another service provider at any time. See responses to A1 and A2 for a further discussion of the disconnect and ordering processes.
