

I would like to add to the record that not only should the F.C.C. mandate online disclosure by broadcasters of political ad funding but for people who may lack reliable high speed internet access a little more information should be provided to TV viewers when they see the ads. So pay TV subscribers viewing these ads who lack Internet access should be able to also get some more information of who's funding political attack ads.