

An article in Forbes Magazine last year (<http://www.forbes.com/sites/kymmchnicholas/2011/01/24/the-fastest-internet-speeds-in-the-world/> ) pointed out the need for more competition in the area of internet service provision. Also the need for increased investment in internet infrastructure. I keep getting increases in rates from Time Warner Cable, but the services provided have actually decreased.

We need to be competitive in our abilities with the rest of the world. Therefore, we must be competitive within our own country in order to achieve this. This will not be done by only allowing one company to provide cable service to each respective area. Please open up cable competition in all areas, so that we are no longer 24th in the world for internet connection speeds and service.
