

Differences in retransmission charges are to be based upon competitive considerations. Retransmission agreements universally forbid the disclosure of information including these charges. To enhance competition, and detect violations, this practice should be ended and disclosure of rates to cable operators should be publicly disclosed.