

In the past, I was a Charger's season ticket holder for several years. I supported the team. However, I'm now back in school and a parent of 3 kids. It is not financially possible to attend games, especially considering the price of parking and food in addition to the tickets. As a tax payer, I help support the stadium. Here in San Diego, my tax money may eventually help build a new stadium. It is unethical to air games in other markets, and let the NFL earn additional media revenue, when the team is playing in a stadium built with city tax dollars.
