

I'm a San Diego Chargers fan living in Ventura Ca. It's a 3hr. drive to San Diego and yet it's blacked out in my home town. More importantly, I own a local sports bar that buys NFL Sunday Ticket. We are located some 150+ miles away and we can't show a Chargers game because they didn't sell out. Nevermind the cost of a ticket but how about the drive and gas? I disagree with the black out rule no matter where you live but in my case there's no way you can justify this policy.
