

Based on the testing and the 'probable' interference with GPS, I strongly oppose the approval of LightSquared proposing a broadband capability that will disrupt and/or interfere with GPS. As an avid boater both onshore and offshore, the importance of GPS reliability can not be over stated. Yes, broadband capabilities are a way of life but nothing should be approved that will interfere with accurate and reliable GPS signals.