

I am a sailor who relies heavily on GPS for safety and navigation. I fully support the FCC decision to not approve Lightsquared's proposal for cellular broadband services as they may interfere with GPS signals.

I am glad to see new broadband offerings, but not ones that interfere with GPS - it is critical. I am relying on the FCC to protect the integrity of our GPS system and fully support your decision not to proceed with Lightsquared's proposal.

Kind regards,
Harold Walder
