

I am not in favor of the Light Squared request, I understand after more testing, that the test has shown interference with the GPS systems, As a mariner, I not only use charts for navigation but the GPS system as a tool to confirm my location. Finding a mariner in trouble using the GPS system is not only easier but in most cases quicker, hopefully saving lives in the process.