

I welcome new cellular service for competition if it will reduce the cost, but that most likely will not be the case. If it interferes with GPS, especially significantly this can become problematic and effect safety especially in boating. Unless it can be proved to be minor AND produce lower cell phone rates I am strongly against this.