

Thank you for not letting anyone interfere with GPS signals. GPS has to be the most useful device ever invented. I no longer have to park by the side of the road to look at a map or figure out where I am to find the next location. I use the intercoastal waterway and it is very important to know that I am in the middle of the channel. Now even my Iphone can remind me of things that I need to do when I arrive at a location. Bravo! Keep up looking out for individuals like me who are dependent on GPS information.
