

Issues of free speech should be held paramount over issues of security in matters of wireless service interruptions. As the BART shut-down show, it is all too easy to use this ability to impede free speech & peaceful gatherings-- compromising the Bill of Rights to deal with civil disobedience shows a clear precedent for abuse. Issues of wireless detonation are valid, but should be viewed in the spectrum of possible detonation measures, from physical to radio, & not used as a smokescreen of "safety concerns."
