

The facts submitted against increased consolidation to these proceedings involving media ownership rules and TV diversification should discourage the FCC from seeking to loosen consolidation rules any further. Instead the Commission should seek to strengthen diversity rules so a company like Clear Channel cannot buy up more local and independent stations, fire DJs to run pre-recorded programming and reduce diversity in the airwaves.