

We need more competition in the market for cellular service, particularly in underserved rural areas. Service reliability and coverage should be improved. We must have adequate capacity to handle call volume in emergency situations. Rural America has not been exciting enough to the big players. Please consider LightSquared's proposals.