

The necessity for a quality and consistent GPS signal in our waters cannot be understated. Between fog, rain, and substantial sea condition changes, GPS has brought us to home port safely many times. Please do whatever it takes to continue to enhance the system rather than cloud the system's reliability. My family also uses GPS in wilderness hiking situations in the Western US, where fixes on water sources, park ranger stations, and safe camping spots represent life support.