

U. S. citizens need greater competition in internet service in sparse/rural areas which light squared is one possible solution.