

Competition is what drives the best products and services. Customers need more choices. Price fixing is almost guaranteed when there is not enough competition. Competition also drives creativity and innovation. Innovation and creativity create more jobs. We need to open the markets for phone and all communications as well as cable tv. It is the American way.

The ways things are now reminds me of what my social studies teacher in the 1960's used to tell our class what Russia was like. Everything was controlled by the communist state and no one had choices. We are doing the same thing by allowing huge corporate interests to lobby for laws that stop competition.

Lets go back to the America of the past where competition was encouraged and the public and the country was better off for it
