

Rep. Jose Serrano (D-N.Y.) defended the proposal and said broadcasters should be required to post the data even if it costs them money. He noted that Congress pays to stream its hearings online to increase transparency.

"We should know who is paying for political ads," Serrano said.