

Keeping the internet neutral works in everyones favor. The recent announcement by the major cable players to start capping usage is going to kill services like Pandora and Netflix. There is already not enough competition to prevent this so FCC should put forth regulations to keep providers from milking the public and destroying the next internet media company.