

This is in the regards to "Restasis" an eye drop for chronic dry eyes.

I was called in the prescription but when I found out how much it was (even WITH my insurance paying for some) it was still $274.00!

The initial cost being over $300. For a tiny bottle of eye drops!

I was also told there there wasn't any generic version of that.

I have since researched that, and found out to be false. There IS generic version, but only in Canada for $29.00!

Please investigate this outrages over-charging on this product and see to it that all pharmacies are notified of the generic version, and can then pass on the savings to Americans.

We are strapped enough.

Thank you!

Patricia R. Collins