

I travel a lot and hotels often boast "high speed internet". But nearly all only produce a .5 mb download rate. What is the threshold were you would consider high speed internet high speed? .5 is not much better than the old 56K modems!