

To FCC Commissioners Genachowski, Clyburn and McDowell:

There is nothing good that can possibly come of large corporations being given free reign to completely dominate a market. Monopolies in any media pave the way for even more rampant propaganda than already exists in our privately-owned news corporations, and allowing the wealthy, powerful, and uncontrolled the leeway to take control of those who still remain to keep them in check will all but guarantee that we will collapse completely back into the fear mongering, ignorant isolationists of the mid-20th century.

Please continue to prevent the ability for the corporations to have information funneled through only a single source. Variety and perspective are all we have left to find any information as actual journalistic research and integrity collapses under the modern atrocity that is our media.

This could be the last defense for truth in modern American media. Please hear us and prevent the chance for power to fall into too few hands.

Regards,

David
