

To FCC Commissioners Genachowski, Clyburn and McDowell:

Do you remember playing outside as a kid, taking in a moment of wonder? The first time you saw a night sky full of stars? The moment the Challenger crashed? Something in you was likely calling to connect, with nature, with peace, with the persons next to you, and you weren't trying to take, you were in the moment, in more gratitude, or oneness, or awe, than is available when we try to grab and take.

We are designed to be humble, to give, to allow the power and authority we have been given, by appointment in our roles as businesspeople, lawmakers, caregivers, etc., to HELP others, and expand the environment around us.

The FCC was created to protect the public voice, not drown it −− I expect you to honor that mandate.

Please save local newsrooms are closing, revive investigative journalism and support diverse viewpoints from shrinking from our airwaves.

LET WONDER and EXPANSION WIN.
