

To FCC Commissioners Genachowski, Clyburn and McDowell:

If we don't protect the little bit of free press that remains in this country, then we are no different than other countries who suppress the real news. If you have something to hide, that's when you want the press gone. And if the monopolies that exist get any bigger, we can kiss our freedom of the press goodbye. I already get my news from the BBC. It's the only way to find out the real news; not the entertainment news we're fed now to keep us distracted.

Regards,

Margaret Hodgkins

United States of America