

If the FCC grants the spectrum license transfer from SpectrumCo LLC and Cox Communications to Verizon Wireless it must place regulatory conditions on the build-out of Verizon's wireless network using the acquired spectrum (decrease existing build-out deadline from 2021 on existing AWS holdings to at least 2015 or 2016) and put conditions on the implementation of the agency resale and joint operating entity agreements. The FCC cannot approve this license transfer if it decides to do so without first reviewing the marketing agreements and not without applying conditions to the JOE of its own. The FCC must protect wire-line and wireless telecommunications.