

Cyber security measures are also necessary to help thwart identity theft and prevent hacking into the networks of companies running nuclear power plants, water facilities and even natural gas and oil pipelines. Cyber security measures to reduce identity theft can result in less credit card fraud and can also thus protect civilians from being targeted by cyber criminals.