

First of all companies like Verizon and Comcast that are service providers should not be in the content business to begin with as it gives them a conflict of interest to prioritize their own content and/or services to access said content and discriminate against competing services online. Second the FCC should strengthen not weaken its rules on cross ownership of TV channels and newspapers and discourage outsourcing of local news.