

My personal experience with Verizon is that they are as crooked a company as I have ever run up against. They force people to sign contracts that Verizon violates and the customer pays for their greed. I kept telling them I got no signal. They said I did. Other people that visit and have their service have the same problems with reception that I did. I quit two lines and went to another carrier and the ruined my credit because of their greed. They should be split up and never allowed to grow in power.
