

I urge you to prohibit further consolidation of telecom and cable providers which already denies U.S. citizens any reasonable choice in the marketplace and, instead, to increase the competition between vendors to improve internet speeds and the quality of services. The United States, embarrassingly, lags far behind other industrialized countries in this sector.