

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to urge you to veto the budding Verizon-Comcast-Time Warner trust that threatens to monopolize our television, phones, and Internet service. Competition is vital to a healthy capitalist marketplace, as it keeps prices low, services plentiful, technological development robust, and companies answerable to the the consumer. The alliance these communications giants are attempting to forge will create a monopoly capable of blocking out any rivals, reducing the number of options available for Americans, and their control of the market will be so ironclad that will never again need to respond to the needs and demands of their customers--destroying all accountability. This is an attempt by CEOs to get rich by impoverishing one of this country's greatest resources: the media.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Will Bredderman
