

Verizon Wireless and the nation's largest cable companies including Comcast and Time Warner have inked a deal to come together and sell each other's products and services.

If the deal between Verizon Wireless and large cable companies goes through, it will end up costing much more than the price of our cable bill.

The lack of cable competition will send our cable and Internet rates up, but the hidden costs will be even bigger. With no competition, we'll lose the freedom to choose between providers. And with no incentive to keep up with improvements, communities will lose the chance to connect to a high-speed future.