

In a situation where most people do not have competition amongst cable providers, allowing more collusion among vendors and throwing a phone company into the mix is crazy -- how is this not anti-competitive and against the interests of the public?

Of course it is against the interests of the public.