

There is already a distinct lack of competition in the home internet and wireless phone markets. Prices are already too high for the actual services provided. Allowing competitors to package each others products instead of compete with each other will make things worse.

End it now.