

The last thing America needs now is a reason not to create new jobs. History has repeatedly shown that mergers and their resulting monopolies cost jobs as redundant positions are eliminated and locations are consolidated. They also cost consumers, due to the resulting higher prices from negligible competition. Remember what happened to your local hardware store when Home Depot came to town?

Allowing Verizon Fios/cable deal will foster collusion instead of fair market competition. I urge the FCC to disallow this 'marriage'.

Sincerely yours,
