

An Open and Neutral Internet is crucial for civic activism, public advocacy and engagement. Whether its Occupy Wall Street protesters protesting the corporate greed of the Wall Street mega banks that were allowed to become too big to fail when the Glass Steagall Act signed by FDR in the 1930s was repealed during President Clinton's second term, Tar Sands Blockade members protesting the Keystone XL pipeline for environmental concerns, protests of hydraulic fracturing, protests against the NRA calling for sane gun control or even concerned citizens fighting for campaign finance and media reform to stop billionaire casino magnates like Sheldon Adelson and Wall St. bankers who turned U.S. Economy into a casino from avoiding accountability for wrongdoing by bribing politicians and political candidates they want elected so less regulation will happen we need to stand up to the corrupting power of Big Money and the FCC needs to strengthen not only cross ownership rules (01-235) and its media ownership rules (2010 media ownership review 09-182) but protections for consumers and competition. Mandating 700 MHz Interoperability for 4G LTE carriers (12-69) and not only preserving the Open Internet Rules (09-191) but strengthening them with Title II reclassification of broadband (10-127) and putting reasonable nondiscrimination conditions on companies conditionally allowed to merge like the FCC got voluntary Net Neutrality commitments from Comcast NBC pre-merger when crafting merger conditions (that need to be enforced), We also need viable pro consumer USF reforms!
