

Don't let VERIZON, et al get away with what is essentially a monopoly, charging consumers higher rates and costing their employees jobs. Cable companies and other communication firms are already raking the public over the coals. Keep competition in the equation and protect the consumer instead of clandestinely siding with the corporate entities.