

I have spent hundreds of dollars in fixing my computers, cell phones, door locks and lost alot of my personal property because of GPS tracking. Hackers have tracked my where abouts invaded my laptops through the wireless modem stolen programs, SSL Certificates so that when I go to the web sight it shows that it does'nt match. I have tried reporting this to the police as far as breaking into my apartment, taking computer programs and other things but there is no evidence to prove this or the hacking into my phones and internet. The phone carriers, and internet companies assure me that this is impossible and it is my responsibilty to protect my computers and phones. I have put every anti-virus, anti-theft and indentity theft program on my computers and phones. I have change my bank account and debit cards numerous times and my internet modem box four times along with my IP address and my door locks and have tried to catch these people or persons either getting into my apartment or through the internet but to no avail. I'm tierd of being victimized by these creeps and I can't even leave my apartment without looking over my shoulder or having someone keep an eye on it. Please tell what it is I can do, the police can't help because it is something they don't understand or have time for but I could really use some advice on what I can do. Thank you.

Debra M. Moore