GLENDALE, Ariz. -- For a brief moment, Michael Dyer stopped running. Hold on.No whistle. No ref raising his hand. So he started running again -- past the tackler who thought he had him down, deep into Oregon territory. A once-in-a-lifetime run, the kind that wins championships. Dyer's stop-and-go maneuver set up a short field goal on the last play that sent No. 1 Auburn over the No. 2 Ducks 22-19 in the Tostitos BCS National Championship Game Monday night.

Just prior to the American Civil War in the late 1850s, the cities of Tucson and Mesilla in southern New Mexico Territory petitioned the United States government to create a separate Territory of Arizona. The proposal was defeated after representatives from the Northern "free" states and the Southern "slave" states could not agree on how to divide New Mexico Territory. Southerners wanted an east-west division, whereas Northerners favored a north-south division of the territory. After the war began, the Confederacy established the Arizona Territory in February 1862 using the east-west boundary.

You're an Angel to me.

Johnny Angel, how I love him.

He's got something I can't resist,
but he doesn't even know that I exist.

Johnny Angel, how I want him.

How I tingle when he passes by.
Every time he says "Hello" my heart begins to fly.

I remember how I get carried away.

I dream of him and me, and how it's gonna be.

Other fellas call me up for a date,

but I just sit and wait, I'd rather concentrate ...

... on Johnny Angel.

'Cause I love him.

And I pray that someday he'll love me.

And together we will see how lovely heaven will be.
