

New York's rates seem most fair to me. Most Americans have long distance service that costs about $.01/minute. Charging $.05 should provide plenty of revenue to cover the costs of any extra equipment needed.

Such a rate would make phone calls much more affordable for many families.