

I like the plan to modernize and refocus USF and ICC to ensure all Americans have access to robust affordable broadband and to accelerate the transition to IP networks. However; my major question is where will the funding come from to make all these changes, and what happens if the major stakeholders can't handle handle the consequences of change and you become somewhat financial unstable.