

By relaxing media ownership rules, the FCC is creating a parallel problem very like the problem with our Congress. Narrowing opinion and ownership down to a very few. And this is called "democracy"? The FCC was created, I believe to protect citizen access to various news sources. The system you are suggesting is not unlike those in non-democratic countries where the government is the sole source and provider of news. Is this what you in the FCC want for our democracy?