

Fox and CBS networks are not complying to the regulations opposed of them to keep commercial announcements at the same if not lower level then the program playing during the NFL season gamesand prime time hours. This is a law recently passed and not being adhered to by these networks. Any other show on these networks does not require a change in volume level and therefore it should not apply during the NFL season or prime time hours either.