

I use GPS for aircraft navigation as well as car navigation, including my cell phone for navigation. LightSquared's operations and GPS are fundamentally incompatible and the FCC should order LightSquared out of the frequency currently being considered for use. AEA is important, but it should not come at the expense of GPS, "which is critical to our country's economy."