Dear Ms. Dortch:

All across Ohio, Affordable Glass & Mirror has provided homeowners with products and services for over 35 years. As a member of the Fairborn and Beavercreek Chambers of Commerce, we are very cognizant of the fact that a rising tide lifts all boats. Mobile technology is one of those tides that enables small businesses such as ours to be more efficient, productive and ultimately more affordable to our customers. For our company in particular, mobile broadband applications have the potential to greatly speed up customer service engagements and improve the coordination of logistics -- saving our customers time and money while improving the quality of service they receive.

On behalf of our company and our customers, we urge the Commission to take actions that will bring more mobile broadband capacity online whether that is by encouraging private investments in network infrastructure build outs or by facilitating lower barriers to entry for small business telecom providers. LightSquared's plan to wholesale access to a nationwide 4G network deserves merit from the Commission because it would both be able to infuse a significant amount of capital into our nation's wireless infrastructure in a short period of time and allow carriers such as Ohio-based PowerNet Global to offer Ohio small businesses the type of robust service at lower prices.

Thank you for your time and consideration on this matter.

Sincerely,

David E. Grusenmeyer

David E. Grusenmeyer, Owner
