

I was searching for an app, and in the search box, was a conversation between two people on my iPhone. This seems to illustrate the brazen intrusions both online and on cell phones. Despite the purchase of security and your complaints being ignored by device makers and service providers, these weird intrusions I have put up with for 15 years. The NYT, Google, and FB wet their pants in 5 minutes