

I would suggest any changes to slacken the standards of nudity and vulgarity held by the FCC would be a disservice to the American public. The current standards allow for so much partial nudity, sexual acts & innuendo, and vulgarity that negatively affect the moral compass of our country, to go even farther down this slope of debasement is not the direction the public really wants, from what I hear in the Midwest. I urge you to take the "high road" and reject any relaxing of FCC standards.