

I would like to express my opposition to the proposed changes to the FCC indecency policies which would allow so-called "fleeting" expletives and nudity to be allowed.

If the past is any indication of how the entertainment industry will push against the indecency limits set by the FCC, a flood of intentionally "fleeting" indecencies can be expected.

Also, the ambiguous nature of the wording of the new policy would make enforcement a bigger nightmare than it already is.

Relaxing these policies would not serve the public interest and would expose those of us who don't agree with the foulmouthed nature of the entertainment industry to levels of indecency that would be unfair by any standards. I should have the right NOT to hear and view this material.
