

It has come to my attention that the FCC is considering removing its ban of nudity and profane language on television and radio. I strongly ask you to reconsider. Surely you can see the damage that relaxed regulations on television and radio has already done great damage to the moral standards of our nation and its youth. If anything, I ask you to make the restrictions stronger. Can we return to a time when we didn't have to be embarrassed to watch tv or listen to a radio with our children?

Allowing television and radio companies to curse or show nudity is not free speech. It, simply put, is the decline of a nation.

Thank you for considering this extremely important matter.
